Race is on for three commission seats in Belle Glade

By Brenda Bunting
Editor

Three candidates have qualified to run for a seat on the Belle Glade City Commission, with several others having picked up packets.

Don Garrett qualified for Seat D on Friday, July 30, the first day of qualifying. He is running for the seat vacated by Rodney "Clay" Connell, who resigned last month. Current city mayor D. Bill Mathis qualified on Monday, August 2 for Seat E, the seat he now holds.

(Betty Boyer also qualified Friday, July 30, for Seat D, but she was unavailable for an interview at press time. Her interview will be in next week.)

Don Garrett

Mr. Garrett, 55, is a newcomer to politics, but not to Belle Glade. He and his wife, Beverly, have lived here for 35 years and currently live at 706

Northeast Second Street.

The Garretts have two sons, Don II, who works in Washington, D.C., and Larry, who will be attending Cumberland College in Tenn. in the fall on a basketball scholarship. He also has a step-daughter, Vicki, who lives in Clewiston.

Mr. Garrett, who was born in east Tennessee, is an independent produce broker and owns Belle Glade Produce Sales, Inc. located on Avenue L. Mrs. Garrett is a teacher's aide at Glades Day School.

While Mr. Garrett has no political experience, he says he does have a strong desire to give back to this community that he says has been so good to his family.

"I've raised my family here and this town has been very good to me. I have no ax to grind. I just want to now give back to the community."

If elected, Mr. Garrett has vowed to donate his salary to the Lighthouse Cafe in Belle Glade. It is an organization that provides meals and clothing to the city's needy. He has also said he will not accept any campaign contributions.

"I challenge the other candidates to also donate their salary to a good cause. I believe we should all be willing to donate our time and energy," he said.

"I'm also concerned about our young people. Many, when they leave here, they never come back. We need to try to offer them some reason to come back here."

D. Bill Mathis

Mr. Mathis, 65, is running for his second term on the Belle Glade City Commission.

He is currently the city's mayor, a position he was elected to by his fellow commissioners. Now retired, he has been a Belle Glade resident most of

City wants airport name changed from Palm Beach County Glades Airport to Pahokee Airport

By Debra Miller
Staff Reporter

Though the Palm Beach County Glades Airport is referred to by locals as the Pahokee Airport, the Pahokee City Commission approved a resolution during their last meeting to ask Palm Beach County to officially change the name to include the city in it.

Since the city is vigorously trying to attract new business and improve their economic base, the commission feels the airport should have the name of the city in its title. The resolution will be sent to the Palm Beach County Commission for approval.

The airport's lease is coming up for renewal and several local companies are vying to take the lease away from current lessee Skydive America.

If Skydive America retains the lease they say they plan to build a 43-slot recreational vehicle park with showers and laundry facilities, offices for skydiving operations, a swimming pool, restaurant, bar and a new hangar.

They currently employ about 25 people, but told the city com-

West Tech to become a Career Academy

By Brenda Bunting

The name will remain the same, but the focus will change at West Technical Education Center this fall when the center switches from a technical center to a career academy for high school students.

Wayne Johnson, spokesman for the school, said the School District of Palm Beach County made the school a high school accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

While many of the classes previously offered at West Tech have already been phased out, the cosmetology classes will continue through this year before they too, are history.

The school has accepted 75 students who will constitute the freshman class. In addition to the four-year academy, West Tech is offering a two-year program to qualified high school students. Ninety eleventh grade students have enrolled in this on a part-time basis.

The academy is designed around a theme, which represent a cluster of occupations, according to Mr. Johnson.

The new look for American women: Strong is in

Katrina Elksen
Contributing
Editor

The women's team managed to prove a lot of stereotypes false while giving young girls all over the country a new image to aspire to.

For example, think women athletes are all brown and no brain? Think again. All of the members of the U.S. Women's Soccer Team either hold a college degree or are pursuing one.

"Think female athletes are unattractive to the opposite sex?"

Posters of Mia Hamm are hot sellers and not just to little girls. Julie Foudy posed for Sports Illustrated's swimsuit issue. Late Show host David Letterman called the team "Babe City."

Think female athletes can't draw a big crowd? Giants Stadium, Soldier Field and the Rose Bowl all sold out for the women's soccer games.

Think female athletes aren't wanted for advertising? Nike, Gatorade, Adidas and Pepsi all benefited from ads featuring members of the soccer team.

There is no doubt these women are in top physical condition.

Soccer requires that they run and run and run for about 90 minutes with very few breaks.

And while they are most certainly fit, they are not thin, at least not by the standard used for fashion models. Brandi Chastain is 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 130 pounds. Julie Foudy, at 5 feet 6 inches, weighs 130 pounds. Michelle Akers is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

With style, grace and a lot of hard work, these women have proven that female athletes can be successful, smart, attractive and strong. If young girls decide to follow their example, the whole nation could become healthier.

Remember: All things in moderation. In the news this week, more studies show that many foods that were considered bad for you are actually beneficial if consumed in moderation.

Examples include eggs, which are a good source of protein; tea, which is high in flavonoids which may protect the heart; red wine, which contains resveratrol, a substance that may reduce levels of "bad" cholesterol; cashews, which contain vitamin E; onions and garlic, which contain substances that help protect the heart; and red meat, which is high in protein (stick to the lean cuts). All of these things were once considered health hazards; now many doctors just advise consumption in moderation.

Of course, if you have health problems or are on prescription medication you should check with your doctor before making any changes to diet or exercise plans.

ER Chronicles: They had to save this man's life

Arlen R.
Stauffer, M.D.

The ER team, all in protective gowns and face-shields, "were doing their jobs."

The young man on the stretcher was moaning. Although he seemed completely alert, he would only give what "I said was his first name, and would not tell Cortez just how his leg came to possess this gaping wound. They call me Blade. Just patch me up so I can go home! You don't need to know nothin' else!"

Blood had been spurting onto the floor when Blade staggered into the ER waiting room. The triage nurse had flopped him into a wheelchair, whisked him to a trauma room, and called for help. Another nurse had pounced on the leg with a large pad.

"I'll keep pressure on it!" While a nurse was starting a couple large IV lines in the young man's arm, Cortez was looking, listening, and feeling all over Blade's body for any signs of other injury. She fired several questions at the uncooperative man.

"I'm fine! Just sew up my leg so I can get outta here!" Then, spotting a police officer in the doorway, Blade sat straight up.

"Get that pig outta here! I don't need no cops! This is not a police matter!"

He shoved two nurses aside, one with each hand; the one holding pressure on the wound hit the tiled wall hard.

"Oooo!" The wind was knocked out of her, and she sat on the floor. She held up one hand and shook her head at her co-workers, indicating that she would be OK.

Blade was up off the stretcher; the blood was spurting again. Just as the officer was approaching, and it seemed as though a violent confrontation was imminent, Blade became very pale. His legs turned to jelly, and he slumped toward the floor, caught by the officer on the way down.

The ER team knew that had little time to control this situation. Six dedicated workers landed on Blade, one trying to control the hemorrhage, the others securing the hands and feet with leather restraints buckled to the metal bars along the stretcher's corners.

They had to save the life of this man, even if he did not understand or cooperate.

"Try to get another IV line him him... his pressure's pretty low! And get the oxygen mask back on him!"

As the IV fluid poured into Blade's veins and his blood pressure began returning toward normal, he again became alert and belligerent. But, that interim minute provided the chance that the ER team needed. Blade's IVs had been restarted, and his blood had been drawn for testing. The bleeding was controlled again by the nurse who had recovered her breath. A bladder catheter had been placed, and a urine specimen was sent to the lab for a drug screening test.

With Blade secured to the stretcher, and the situation more controlled now, Cortez looked him in the eyes.

"Alright, buddy, here's what we're doing to do now." She was direct and to-the-point. "I think you have cut one of the big arteries in your leg. The vascular surgeon is coming to see you, and we're going to be doing a test of those arteries in a few minutes to see just what was cut. OK?"

I would guess that you're under arrest now; and this officer is not going to leave your side. I'd suggest that you cooperate so that we can take care of your leg and save your life today. OK?"

Blade sighed, then relaxed back onto the stretcher. He knew he had no other choice. The officer tapped his night-stick on the edge of Blade's stretcher. When Blade looked his way, the officer smiled and nodded...just a casual reminder that he was there.

With the bleeding and vital signs under control, the officer and two nurses accompanied Blade across the hall to the Radiology Department. He was to have an emergency arteriogram; these pictures of dye in the leg arteries would reveal the nature of the arterial injury, and help determine what corrective measures would need to be accomplished. Back in the ER, Cortez attended to an elderly man with chest pains.

"What were you guys doing to that boy?" This distinguished gentleman had obviously heard some of the commotion from around the corner.

"He's doing better now. Let's talk about these pains you're having." Cortez realized that she would only have a few minutes before Blade would be back from Radiology, so a very focused gathering of information from this patient was necessary.

In less than five minutes, Cortez had the facts she needed. She called out several orders to a nurse and ER tech as she hurried from this room.

Another police officer was strolling in through the ambulance entrance, and he nodded towards Cortez.

"I think I found out who your buddy is. A couple guys down on Sharp Street say he's Bill Jones - everyone calls him Blade - and seems there was a bit of a disagreement during a little drug deal. They say he got knifed, but, of course, they don't have any idea of who did it."

The ER secretary overheard this conversation.

"You know, I think I remember that name...let me check with Medical Records." She hustled out the side door.

Within two minutes, she returned, smiling and holding up a previous hospital chart. Sure enough, it was Blade's old records.

Cortez took a quick peek. "Hey! Look at this! We treated this guy for a stab wound to the abdomen last year!"

At that moment, Blade was being wheeled back into his ER room, and the vascular surgeon was explaining what was in store for him. From across the room, Blade appeared quite interested and attentive.

The nurse who had been shoved into the wall drew both hands down across her eyes and signed. She rested her chin on her hands.

"Why do we keep doing this?" she asked rhetorically. Cortez raised her eyebrows and smiled. "Because we just love it!"

She actually sounded serious.

Trauma is the leading cause of death in persons one to 35 years of age. Each year, a third of all trauma patients are victims of intentional trauma (stabbing, gun shots, assaults, etc.).

Many persons involved in intentional trauma (either as victims or as the assailants) are under the influence of alcohol or other drugs at the time of the incident.

The cost of intentional trauma to the American healthcare system is enormous.

It's time to say no to more taxes

"Friday, July 30, I received a letter from the City of Belle Glade, as most property owners did. I was told I would have to pay a $29.65 tax on my home for stormwater runoff."

Because you have a roof on your house and a driveway, you have to pay this tax. Now who is the pea brain to think of something like this?

If you build a house in Belle Glade, don't put a roof on it and don't have a driveway. Sounds dumb? So does this tax.

It is about time the taxpayers of Palm Beach County and Belle Glade said no to tax increases.

I ask everyone to go to that hearing August 23, 1999. Let your voice be heard. And oh, yes, take a drum of tar and some feather pillows and rail and ride these pea brains out of town."

City Manager W. Shelton Smith responds: "The past decade has brought increasing recognition of environmental and other problems associated with stormwater runoff from developed property, including degradation of our surface waters and standing water on our streets and other property. The City of Belle Glade (the "City") has actively pursued solutions to these problems by developing a comprehensive Stormwater Management Program. In addition, the City's Comprehensive Plan and recent federal regulations mandate improvements to the City's stormwater management infrastructure. This will require additional expenditures both for capital facilities (land and structures) and operation and maintenance (for example, cleaning and correcting erosion problems in ditches and culverts)."

The City has determined that the best way to pay for these needed expenditures is through the use of non-ad valorem assessments on the properties that will benefit from the stormwater improvements.

Unlike a "tax" which is levied on all properties based on their taxable values and without regard to proportional benefits received by the taxed properties, and assessment is based on the proportional benefit received by the assessed property and has nothing to do with the taxable value of the property. In theory, an assessment is a much fairer method of allocating costs of services when the benefit to each parcel can be clearly identified.

Assessments are made against any property that contains impervious surfaces (roofs, driveways, patios, parking lots and similar areas) on the property. The rationale for this is that water runs off these impervious surfaces and into the City's stormwater system. Properties without impervious surfaces "soak up" the stormwater and do not produce "runoff" which enters the stormwater system.

The proposed budget for stormwater includes funding for two people to maintain the stormwater system along with proposed operating expenditures required to maintain the system. It is the City's plan to utilize these resources to keep the storm drains unclogged so that the system will function more effectively.

The City Commission will hold a public hearing at 6:00 p.m. on August 23, 1999, in the City Commission Chambers located at the Municipal Complex, Belle Glade, Florida, to receive comments on the proposed Stormwater Service Assessments, including their collection on the ad valorem tax bill. You are invited to attend and participate in the hearing."

Editor's note: We received a Speak Out about money missing at the Pahokee Marina Campground office. We passed this information along to Chief of Police Skeets Salvatore. We plan to run the Speak Out and the response in next week's edition of The Sun.

Having a heat wave

Summer is here...are you ready for this extreme heat?

By Toni Sanders

Heat can affect anyone. It is most likely to affect young children, elderly people, and people with health problems. For instance, people with a medical condition that causes poor blood circulation; and those who take medications to get rid of water from the body (diuretics) or for certain skin conditions, may be more susceptible to heat sickness than other. It is important for everyone to be prepared for heat emergencies.

Heat wave is a prolonged period of excessive heat and humidity. The National Weather Service steps up its procedures to alert the public during these periods of excessive heat. Heat waves can result in three main heat emergencies: heat cramps, heat exhaustion, and heat stroke (also referred to as sunstroke).

Heat cramps are muscular pains and spasms due to heavy exertion. They usually involve the abdominal muscles or legs. It is generally

In harm's way: Engineers to measure hurricane forces on homes

By Aaron Hoover
University of Florida News

As the hurricane churns towards land, researchers fan out into evacuated coastal cities in the storm's path, setting up equipment that could provide vital new information on nature's most powerful storms.

It sounds like a sequel to Twister. But the scene will become a reality this summer, when engineering professors and students from three universities, including the University of Florida, launch a project to learn more about how hurricane-force winds affect houses.

The goal of the Florida Coastal Monitoring Program is to measure wind speeds, sources and pressures on houses retrofitted for hurricane preparedness. Researchers want to learn how effective the retrofits were, how to design more hurricane-worthy homes and whether building codes are up to snuff. They also want to gather information about low-altitude wind speeds and directions in hurricanes, data that is largely unavailable today, they say.

Clemson University in Clemson, S.C., is leading the project, with UF and Florida International University participating. Tim Reinhold, a Clemson associate professor of civil engineering, said the research may shed light on what has become a hotly contested issue.

"After a hurricane strikes, wind speeds tend to get exaggerated and many people believe the storm was so strong damage was inevitable," he said. "Others will say the damage was a result of shoddy construction. And then there are people who say the codes just weren't stringent enough."

"Who is right? Right now, there's so little data as to how strong the winds were and how strong the houses were built, anybody can put up as much smoke as they want to," said Professor Reinhold.

The researchers currently are outfitting 10 homes in South Florida with brackets, wiring and other equipment in preparation for the start of the June 1-Nov. 30 hurricane season. The homes, plus 10 more in the Florida Panhandle to be outfitted later this summer, are receiving hurricane retrofits as part of the Florida Department of Community Affairs' Residential Coastal Mitigation Program. The program, launched after Hurricane Andrew in 1992, provides assistance to homeowners to retrofit homes against wind or water damage.

UF researcher: Athletes likely to have symptoms of eating disorders

By Kristin Harmel
University of Florida News

Athletes are more likely than nonathletes to report symptoms of eating disorders, even though participation in sports can help young people have better self-images, a University of Florida researcher has found.

Performance and social pressures from coaches, judges and teammates may increase athletes' vulnerability to eating disorder symptoms, said Heather Hausenblas, an assistant professor in UF's department of exercise and sport sciences.

Hausenblas' study, which will be published in September's Journal of Sport and Exercise Psychology, was a statistical review of 92 separate studies that included 10,878 athletes. Hausenblas did the study with Albert Carron from The University of Western Ontario.

In a previous study, published in December's Journal of Sport Behavior, Hausenblas concluded that participants in athletic activities have better body images, higher levels of self-esteem and more interpersonal trust than non-athletes. Hausenblas said these qualities don't necessarily prevent eating disorder symptoms, because the drive for thinness often can be strongly motivated by other external factors and pressures.

Participants in aesthetic sports, such as gymnastics, diving and figure skating, may be more prone to eating disorder symptoms than other athletes, because they are subjectively evaluated by judges, so their physical appearance may play a large part in their success, Hausenblas said.

"They may be scoring higher

Mark your calendars

The 1999-2000 school year will begin on Monday, August 16 and continue through May 26, 2000.

Parents should have their child's shot records and school supplies by the school start date. Principals say it is very important that all students attend school the first day. Most schools will begin registration on or before July 26, 1999.

Parents should be aware of dress codes

Lake Shore Middle School parents should be aware that the school will be having a uniform dress code this upcoming school year.

For the convenience of parents that guardians, Beall's Department Store will be offering the uniforms for sale at a reasonable price on August 13 from 9 a.m. to noon in the school's media center.

Free and reduced meals for children

The East Coast Migrant Head Start Project offers free or reduced lunches to children in four of their centers located in the Glades.

The program is offered through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's "Child and Adult Care Food Program" and is available at: The Early Head Start Center and the O'Brien Center on 18th Street, Belle Glade; the Shannon Center on Duda Road, Belle Glade; and at the South Bay Center on US 27. For more information contact the individual centers.

thought that the loss of water from heavy sweating causes the cramps. To treat heat cramps, get the person to a cooler place and have him or her rest in a comfortable position. Lightly stretch the affected muscle and replenish fluids. Give the person a half glass of cool water every fifteen minutes. Do not give liquids with alcohol or caffeine in them, as they can make conditions worse.

Heat exhaustion typically occurs when people exercise heavily or work in a warm, humid place where body fluids are lost through heavy sweating. Blood flow to the skin increases, causing blood flow to decrease to the vital organs. This results in a form of mild shock. The skin will be cool and moist, and could appear to be either pale or flushed. The victim may have a headache and/or be suffering from nausea. There may also be some dizziness. It is important to treat the victim promptly so that the condition will not intensify and become heat stroke. Begin treatment by getting the person out of the heat and into a cooler place. Remove or loosen tight clothing and apply cool, wet cloths, such as towels or sheets. If the person is unconscious, give cool water to drink, a half glass every fifteen minutes, and make sure the person drinks slowly. Again, do not give liquids that contain alcohol or caffeine. Let the victim rest in a comfortable position, and watch carefully for changes in his or her condition.

Heat stroke is the most serious heat emergency. It is life threatening. The victim's temperature control system, which produces sweating to cool the body, stops working. The body temperature can rise so high that brain damage and death may result if the body is not cooled quickly. Here are some signs that a person is having a heat stroke: hot, red skin; changes in consciousness; rapid, weak pulse and rapid, shallow breathing. Body temperature can be very high—sometimes as high as 106°F. If the person was sweating from heavy work or exercise, skin may be wet; otherwise, it will feel dry. A person suffering from heat stroke needs help fast. Call 9-1-1 and move the person to a cooler place immediately. Immerse the victim in a cool bath or wrap wet sheets around the body and fan it. Watch for signals of breathing problems. Keep the person lying down and continue to cool the body any way you can. If the victim refuses water, is vomiting, or there are changes in the level of consciousness, do not give anything to eat or drink.

These are very serious conditions. Now that you know what can happen, here are some ways you can protect yourself and your family from heat emergencies. If a heat wave is predicted or happening...

- Slow down. Avoid strenuous activity. If you must do strenuous activity, do it during the "coolest" part of the day, which is usually in the morning between 4 a.m. and 7 a.m.
- Stay indoors as much as possible. If air conditioning is not available, stay on the lowest floor, out of the sun.
- Wear lightweight, light-colored clothing to reflect away some of the sun's energy.
- Drink plenty of water regularly and often at least eight ounces, glasses per day and drink plenty of liquids even if you do not feel thirsty.
- Water is the safest liquid to drink during heat emergencies.
- Avoid drinks with alcohol or caffeine in them. They can make you feel good briefly, but make the heat's effects on your body worse. This is especially true about beer, which actually dehydrates the body.
- Eat small meals and eat more often. Avoid foods that are high in protein, which increases metabolic heat.
- Avoid using salt tablets unless directed to do so by a physician.

on eating disorder indice tests (which test for eating disorder warning signs) because of performance and social pressures in their environment, like trying to maintain a lean body for optimal performance," she said. These factors may in a sense, raise more awareness to the athletes, and they may be more conscious of what they eat and how they look."

The most common symptom, Hausenblas said, is the "drive for thinness," which is marked by extreme dieting, fasting and a preoccupation with losing weight. Other common symptoms are bingeing and purging techniques such as taking laxatives, diuretics and diet pills and engaging in excessive exercise.

Hausenblas said some of the traits of eating disorders stem from qualities that also drive people to succeed in sports competition, such as perfectionism, compulsiveness, self-motivation and high achievement expectations.

"This is a very prevalent problem in athletics," said Marie Chafe, the executive director of the Altamonte Springs-based International Association of Eating Disorders Professionals. "In fact, it has grown to such an extent that several universities are now implementing programs for their student-athletes to deal with eating disorders."

Body dissatisfaction among women has increased over the last few decades, which has led to a growing number of women with eating disorders. In fact, some studies have shown that about a third of women between the ages of 18 and 24 suffer from some degree of disordered eating, Chafe said. Societal pressure to conform to the current "ideal" body shape has led many women to change their self-perceptions.

"Society's ideal fluctuates," Hausenblas said. "In the 1960s, it was a thin shape. Today, it's a thin and fit shape. To achieve the ideal, many men and women try to lose weight and tone up and they begin to diet, which is the No. 1 precursor to an eating disorder."

For the most part, she said, sport participation has many physical and psychological benefits. However, in general, athletes are reporting more eating disorder symptoms than non-athletes, particularly athletes in aesthetic sports.

Further research is needed to determine if athletes are more at-risk than non-athletes for actual eating disorders, Hausenblas said, adding that education of coaches and judges is the first step in awareness and prevention of eating disorder symptoms.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Dale Earnhardt Jr. vs. Todd Bodine

This one got started two weeks ago and is going to linger. At Pikes Peak (Fountain, Colo.), the youngest Bodine put the younger Earnhardt in the wall, costing him the Busch Grand National point lead. It only for a week.

Was Dale Jr. mad? Oh yeah. "I'll hold a grudge over this, until, well, you know," said Earnhardt. "They say what comes around usually goes back around.... Everybody else got by us, but that cue-ball-headed fool (Bodine) can't get by us without wrecking us.... He's 40 years old (actually 35) and still driving Busch cars. That ought to tell you something."

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "The handlers haven't domesticated 'Little E' yet. And he came back to win the next race (Saturday at Gateway). You've got to like that."

PROFILE

Dale Earnhardt Jr.

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

Despite the pressure that comes with being the son of a seven-time Winston Cup champion, Dale Earnhardt Jr. has passed all tests on his way to NASCAR stardom.

In his first two Winston Cup starts, the "second coming of Dale" has excelled at qualifying. He was the eighth qualifier at his first Winston Cup try (Charlotte in May) and started 13th at the recent race in New Hampshire.

"Little E" also won the Busch Grand National championship in 1998, his first full year on the circuit.

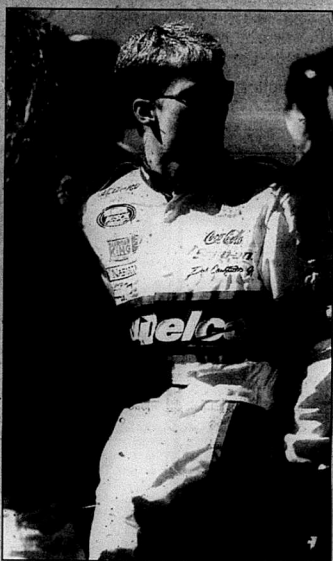

AGE: 24
HOMETOWN: Born in Kannapolis, N.C., lives in Mooresville, N.C.

MARITAL STATUS: Single
CAR: No. 8 Budweiser Chevrolet Monte Carlo, owned by Dale and Teresa Earnhardt
RECORD: 2 starts, 0 wins, 0 poles, 0 top-five finishes, 0 top-10s, nearly $100,000 in career earnings

FIRSTS: Start (May 30, 1999, at Charlotte), pole (none), win (none)

HOW DO YOU COPE WITH ALL OF THE PRESSURE? "The only thing that saves me is, I feel like I'm always getting pointed in the right direction. You know, you need to be here, you need to be there. I've got a lot of good people helping me. It prepares me for things like press conferences and things. I really trust those people. They wouldn't put me in a situation where I'd totally bomb out. I'm a race-car driver. I'm not a spokesperson. I'm not an actor. They're waiting for you to say something stupid, and I'm trying to disappoint them."

WHAT IS THE SECRET OF YOUR BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL SUCCESS? "We have such a close bond, a close relationship, that I still see the enjoyment out of it. I think I enjoy driving a race car more than anybody on the racetrack. I just enjoy driving a race car. I can't tell you how much fun it is."

Dale Earnhardt Jr. will run 3 more Cup races this year.

DO YOU THINK YOU'RE READY FOR WINSTON CUP? "I know how tough it is, if that's what you mean. It'll be years before I can look over to (crew chief) Tony Eury and say, 'Tony, I think we're good for the pole.' You don't say that kind of thing; even if you are thinking it, you don't say it."

Who's Hot... Who's Not

■ HOT: Dale Jarrett, headed to one of his better tracks.

■ NOT: Jeff Gordon, now consigned to sixth in the points.

Trackside Trivia

ANSWERS

1. Tiny Lund in 1963; 2. Dick Trickle, at age 48; 3. Dale Jarrett in 1996.
1. Who was the oldest driver to win the Daytona 500?
2. Who was the oldest winner of Winston Cup's rookie-of-the-year award?

FROM THE ARCHIVES

Starting his first season in 1990, Jeff Burton brought back memories of Bill Elliott's 1988 victory in the Pepsi 400 at Daytona. Elliott started 35th and finished 35th, but he was the only driver to finish the race.

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

Although Mark Martin has never won the Brickyard 400, he has finished in the top five in three of his five Indianapolis Motor Speedway appearances. Martin finished second to Jeff Gordon last year, fourth in 1996 and fifth in 1995. Currently he is second in the Winston Cup standings, 254 points behind Dale Jarrett.

Following his Indy test, Martin said: "We ran there like we ran everywhere else right now. That's my best answer to it. We're rich the head of the class, but we're right there."

AROUND THE GARAGE

Does Martin have what it takes for Brickyard?

"It takes no effort at all for me to look at it as the next race on the schedule. It pays a lot. Five-run third, fourth and fifth. I made more money than I had ever won for winning any of my 30 races.... That's a scorecard. What it pays, the size of the trophy, those are all scorecards for importance, but all throughout my career, I'd race for $200 to win one night and $3,000 to win the next night. What's the difference? I wanted to win the $200 to win just as bad as we did the $3,000 to win. Obviously, we do better if we win the $3,000, but a racer should want to win all of them."

SHOULD BE TOUGH: Jarrett won the Brickyard in 1996, outlasting then-teammate Ernie Irvan, but the current point leader could easily have three victories at Indy. He dominated much of the race in both '97 and '98. Last year he ran out of gas while leading but went back out and made up four laps, only to finish 16th.

"Any time you have the best car you're like to take advantage of that, especially a race as big as Indy," he said. "But I think it gives us a heads-up on this year because we're gonna be taking the same race car back. It tested well, so we're excited about going back. We've looked at it over the years and Robert Yates' cars have had opportunities to win almost all of the Brickyard 400s, and we've only come away with one of them, but we'd like to think we've got a good shot again."

RATINGS INCREASE: The 1999 Pennsylvania 500 telecast on SuperStation TBS registered a 34 percent increase over the 1998 event. The event drew a Nielsen cable rating of 5.1, as opposed to a 4.1 the previous year.

Crew of the Week

■ Since there was no Winston Cup race last week, let's reward off-the-track activity. Car owner Tim Beverley has recently signed crew chief James Ince, engine builder Claude Queen and driver Rich Bickle to multiyear contracts to stay with the Pontiac team, which is coming off a seventh-place finish at Pocono.

Fan Tips

■ Jim Duffy runs an outfit called Catwing Music (P.O. Box 47, Buskirk, NY 12028) and has put together an auto racing album that deals with action from Winston Cup to the dirt tracks. In marked contrast to many musical works designed to capitalize on NASCAR's growth, this one isn't half bad. For more information, call (518) 686-4853.

Youth Leadership provides hands-on skills training to young people in Palm Beach County. Ms. Alvarez of Glades Day was one of the 40 students to receive a scholarship award from Leadership Palm Beach County. Ms. Alvarez and Camelia Islam of Boca Raton High School received special recognition by School Board Members Dorothy Montgomery and Paulette Burdick who attended the ceremony. Both students wrote essays giving their definition of leadership. That, along with recommendations and attendance at Youth activities, made them the first scholarship winners.

City will allow resident to setup a concession at Lake

The Pahokee, City Commission approved a proposal last week by Cindy Anderson, allowing her to set up a mobile concession business at the Lake.

Though a permanent structure is not permitted on the shores of the Lake, the city commission will allow her to set up her mobile vending unit during weekends and holidays.

The "lunch wagon" will be towed to the lake and removed each day.

"In addition to being completely licensed, I will be licensed through the Division of Hotels and Restaurants as well as Palm Beach County," said Ms. Anderson.

Ms. Anderson said she would also follow the requirements of the Division of Hotels and Restaurants to dispose of all trash and refuse on a daily basis.

"I plan to serve fountain sodas, hot dogs and other finger foods," said Ms. Anderson. "I do not intend to overlap the menu of the city's bait and tackle shop."

Mr. Johnson says that while similar technical training courses may be available in traditional schools, career academies provide students a unique opportunity for in-depth training and education in specific career areas of interest.

A career academy provides a standard or college-ready high school diploma. It has Microsoft Office National Certification and has the Florida Gold Seal Endorsement.

The school offers dual enrollment with Palm Beach Community College and classes for the State

They have also scheduled a skydiving competition at the airport in November, which will be filmed and may be sold to a sports programming network of Florida Certified Nursing Assistant.

This first class of students have expressed an interest in either communications (electronics), diesel technology (engineering), or health science (medicine.)

Students accepted in the career academies have to meet admission criteria including having a 2.0 GPA or better. They must have recommendations from two teachers and have good conduct and attendance records. They must be in the top two or higher reading level on standardized tests such as the CTBS.

Orientation for all academy students and their parents will be held at the

Cabrera, about a person inside the fenced-in portion of the business on the south side of the building.

Patrolman Juric was unable to locate anyone in the yard, however a pile of automotive parts was found near the edge of the property near a fence and an unfamiliar vehicle was on the property.

Since the vehicle was on his property, Mr. Cabrera had the car towed away.

Later in the day, Patrolman Juric was approached by Jeanette Nelson, who asked where his car was. Nelson, apparently realizing his mistake in asking the police where his car was towed to, after it was discovered at the scene of a burglary, confessed to being the person inside the fence at Glades Auto Service.

Nelson was booked at the Belle Glade Police Department and charged with burglary.

In another incident on Sunday, Patrolman Lynden Peters of the Belle Glade Police Department saw a suspicious vehicle in the area of N.E. 1st Street.

Patrolman Peters recognized the vehicle as a 1999 Chevrolet 1500 pickup that had been stolen from Steve Moore Chevrolet in Belle Glade when the suspects drove through the dealership's fence with it on July 17.

When Patrolman Peters approached the vehicle, the driver, Steven Slaughter, 34, ran from the pickup. Patrolman Peters organized a perimeter and called in the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office K-9 Unit to track down Slaughter.

Slaughter was found hiding in a doghouse on N.E. Avenue H, but refused to exit and became combative. The K-9 was released and police say Slaughter began hitting the dog with a paint can and a bag of petroleum absorbent gravel. The deputies and officers got Slaughter out of the doghouse. When they sprayed pepper spray into it, he was transported to Glades General Hospital and treated for a minor dog bite.

Slaughter was charged with burglary, petty theft, grand theft auto and injuring a police dog. The dog was not injured in the incident.

On Sunday, August 1, Patrolman Darren Read responded to 616 Covenant Drive to investigate a disturbance complaint.

Patrolman Read arrived and discovered that Jacqueline Lasane, 31, of N.E. 22nd Street in Belle Glade had come to Elizabeth Hardwick's Covenant Village home because she thought Hardwick was making harassing telephone calls to her house.

A small verbal argument ensued after which Hardwick started to walk away. Hardwick's daughter pulled into the parking lot and when Hardwick tried to approach her daughter, Lasane allegedly jumped out of her vehicle holding a machete with a 24-inch blade and threatened to decapitate Hardwick with the machete.

Hardwick said she feared for her safety and fled the area to contact police. Lasane was arrested on a charge of aggravated assault on a person 65 years of age or older. Hardwick was not injured during the incident.

On Friday, July 31, Detective James Benedict and Sergeant Jeffers Walker of the Belle Glade Police Department observed a stolen vehicle reported by the Royal Palm Beach Police Department in the 700 block of S.W. Avenue E.

Other patrol units began to follow the vehicle, which led police down several side streets at city manager. He has over 40 years of experience in government.

He and his wife, Bobbi, live at 800 N.E. Third Street. Mrs. Mathis works in the recreation department of Belle Glade City Hall.

Mr. Mathis says he is proud of some of the projects that have been started while he has been on the commission, including salary increases for city employees.

"We're looking forward to the construction at the new city business park in the next few months and the cleanup of Belle Glade is continuing to go well," he said.

The city is planning another intense clean up of a section of the town next month. The last clean up in the southwest section netted over 22,000 pounds of trash.

Mr. Mathis is also proud of the fact that the city was able to pass an ordinance requiring city department heads and assistant department heads, police and fire personnel to live in the city. This was an ordinance he strongly believed in and pushed for.

He said a youth center committee has also been established to explore options for a center and another committee has been set up to study a current city ordinance on parking within the city limits.

Potential candidates have until next Friday, Aug. 13 to qualify for three seats open on the city commission. The last day to register to vote in the upcoming election is Aug. 16, and the election is scheduled for Sept. 14.

If a runoff is necessary, it will be held Sept. 21.
